To whom it may concern,

Australian Enviro Services Pty. Ltd. (AES) was subcontracted by Iqon Pty. Ltd. to undertake the removal of redundant underground storage tanks (UST's) at several ACT school sites as part of the DET (Schools) P2 package of works for ACT Procurement Solutions on behalf of the Department of Education and Training.

The scope of works included the location, removal, and in one case in-situ abandonment of UST's and pipe work at the following schools.

Canberra High School	($35,900)
Stromlo High School	($28,200)
Alfred Deakin High School	($122,300)
Narrabundah College	($48,500)
Copland College	($78,600)
Telopea Park School	($37,350)

Iqon again subcontracted AES to remove another UST at Fraser Primary School as part of another project for ACT Procurement Solutions ($37,900).

The majority of the works had to be carried out during school term breaks which made for very tight time frames, and also required coordination with the many various subcontractors on site performing other works associated with the project, as well as testing and reporting obligations to the regulatory authorities.

The attention to detail at all stages, from Safe Work Method Statements through to liaison with and reporting to Environment ACT and ACT Work Cover, planning and staging and flexibility to work with the site foremen and school requirements made this part of the overall project a problem free exercise.

I have no hesitation in recommending James Costello and his company Australian Enviro Services to carry out any works in this specialized field.
